Veteran Of Stampede Duly Honored

LIBRARY REPORT

Retiring from active Stampede management after 50 years of it, Ray Knight, pioneer colonizer, stockman and Stampeder of Southern Alberta was guest of honor at a Board of Trade meeting and banquet in the 2nd Ward Church Monday night.

Nearly 150 people, exclusive of the cooks sat down to the lovely supper prepared by the ladies, and enjoyed to the full the meal topped off with ice cream and cake. Dr. F. M. Hall, President of the Board of Trade was in the chair.

Following the supper, Dr. Madill, program Chairman, took charge and conducted the short program, calling on Miss Margaret Allen for a piano solo, followed by two Vocal trios by the Bennett sisters.

On behalf of the Board of Trade, J. H. Walker then presented the guest of honor with a fine Stetson hat in appreciation of his years of willing and unselfish service in furnishing entertainment for the thousands of Southern Alberta people who have attended Ray Knight Stampede. Jim Walker, who is possibly better acquainted with Ray than anyone else could not refrain from a funny story or two in connection with Ray's activities, and paid tribute to the Knights as colonizers and community builders.

Mr. Knight in replying stated that he had always enjoyed managing Stampedes. He won his first roping prize 43 years ago in Salt Lake City and had been mixed up in stampeding ever since. Speaking of his early experiences in Southern Alberta he told of his father's purchase of 365,000 acres of land, with the promise that 3,000 acres would be broken up the first year. At one time 80 plough outfits were at work breaking sod and instead of 3,000 they broke 4,000. He and his brother Will surveyed the townsites of Raymond. In his jocular way Ray said his father always maintained he had two very willing boys in Will and Ray, Ray was willing to do the work and Will was willing to let him do it. He had always liked work, and even at 68, he is still operating a large farm on the ridge south of town.

Another piano solo by Miss Margaret Allen and the singing of "God Save the King" brought the program to a close, and the floor was then cleared and dancing enjoyed with L. D. King acting as Master of Ceremonies. Out-of-town guests at the party were introduced by Frank R. Taylor, Vice-President of the Board of Trade, and these included people from Lethbridge, Warner, Milk River, Coutts, Welling, Magrath and nearly every other point in Southern Alberta, and all had a good time. During the supper an autograph album was passed around the tables, and all present signed their names in this book which was presented to Ray as a souvenir of his party.

Score cards are being arranged and will be provided for each entrant giving all the information as to basis of judging.

Wednesday was Snow family day at the Temple and Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Snow, Mr. and Mrs. Golden, Miss Alice and Mrs. J. O. Turner all attended.

Britain is said to have purchased enough Canadian wheat for spring shipment to take care of her requirements up to June. Certainly huge purchases have been made and the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence route should be extremely busy once the ice goes out.

"Their Own Country" by Alice Lindale Hobart. Many times we are told "It takes all kinds of readers to keep up a Library. Very few books please all readers, but among the few are liked by all are the Hobart books. Mrs. Hobart has written some eight books, among them "Oil for the Lamps of China" was her most outstanding. In this book she told of Stephen and Hester Chase and their life in China. "Their Own Country" brings them back to America, the land of their birth. You are concerned here with the conflict that arises between man and his institutions, especially his business.

"Their Own Country" has its setting during the period of a financial depression in America. Security is the dominant problem. As you finish the book you feel grateful to its author who gives you courage for today. She has somehow made the entire world look brighter.

OTHER NEW BOOKS

"Mother of the Smothes," by Carr. "My Mother is a Violent Woman," written by a thirteen year old boy.

"Katrina," first book, "Mariana," second book, by Salminen.

NON - FICTION

"Americans All Over" by Beatty.

"How to Make Good Pictures."

NEWS NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. F. Donald Merrill were in Cardston Sunday. Don said it surely snowed hard part of the way home.

Hyrum Ririe, who farms near Welling, returned last week after spending the winter in Utah. He will spend the summer here.

Harding Brewerton was laid up part of last week with a catch in his back. He was sawing a board when his muscles knotted and he had to go to bed for part of two days.

The Town grader was on Broadway Monday morning scarifying and grading the street. This timely work will likely save a lot of damage to the road from the frost coming out of the ground.

Fred Romeril reports exceptionally fine returns in lambs from his flock of purebred Corriedale sheep at the farm south of town, the lamb crop being 140 p.c. The bigger flock at the Mt. View ranch is also making fine returns on the portion of the crop that has arrived to date.

We are pleased to report that A.W. Kirkham, after being quite ill for a few days as a result of the strain due his journey from Utah, is feeling better now and is up and around the house. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leavitt went to Utah during the Easter holidays and brought Mr. and Mrs. Kirkham home.

The A. H. Zabriskie family furnished the program at the 1st Ward Sunday evening, and the following numbers were given: Vocal Solo by Joanne, Talk by Billie, Vocal Solo by Virginia, Biography by Mrs. Zabriskie, a number by the Choir, and a talk by A. H. Zabriskie. Mrs. Kay Redd accompanied the musical numbers. The meeting was greatly enjoyed and the family may be proud of the fine showing they made.

NEWS NOTES

Farmers were busy Monday hauling their fertilizer and beet seed from the Factory to the farms. It went out by truck and team most of the day.

A few drops of rain and a skiff of snow, with a cool north wind kept Monday morning quite cool. The sun came out toward noon and warmed things up a little bit.

The first prosecution for not having 1940 license plates was made in Lethbridge Wednesday morning. Motorists should heed the warning and get their plates now.

Quite a number of Raymond people were in Magrath Monday evening for the play off game between the Magrath Lions and the Vancouver Maple Leafs, the latter winning by a 56-44 score.

Conference visitors who returned toward the end of the week, said that the weather was cold all the way from Salt Lake, with snow most of the way across Montana.

Farmers from Cardston to Spring Coulee will be another week before they can get on their land. A wet snow Monday soaked up their fields again in addition to the storms we have had.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Nephi McLean

THANK YOU, RAYMOND

The goodwill gesture of the Raymond folk who presented their minstrel show here Wednesday night and of the Raymond orchestra which played for the dance afterward, is the sort of thing that is pleasant to contemplate. For the cost of the trip, the Raymondites put on the show for the benefit of Cardston's new scout house.

This is the sort of intercommunity goodwill and co-operation that is so sadly lacking on an international scale. It's existence here lends strength to the comforting thought that as Erwin Canham remarks in the Christian Science Monitor, the good-humored instincts prevail after all, despite the color of the international picture.

Not only did the Raymond group provide a means of raising funds for the scout house, but likewise they put on a ripping good show. Cardston is not unappreciative of their generosity. —Cardston News.

NOTE: The above is printed at the request of Cardston people, who want the Raymond troupe to know that their friendly gesture was appreciated. It seems that some of the Raymond people felt they were not treated quite as they should be, and Cardston wanted the above printed to show that all the proceeds of the entertainment, except what was given to the Raymond troupe was turned over to the Scout House fund. The hall, the advertising and everything was donated and those in charge are fully appreciative of all this and want our Raymond people to know that their assistance was certainly appreciated.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Nephi McLean, respected pioneer of Raymond and mother of ten children, were held in the 2nd Ward Church last Friday with Bishop Walker in charge. Milton Strong conducted the choir with Mrs. Emma Dahl at the organ.

Speakers at the service were Elder P. J. Christensen, a close neighbor of the McLean family for years, who delivered a fine sermon on the resurrection and life after death, and who paid his tribute of respect to the memory of true neighbor and friend.

Elder J. W. Evans, former bishop of Raymond spoke of his long acquaintance with the McLean family, having known them since the family arrived here in 1903. He had known deceased in her various church and community services, and urged the children to follow the fine example of their mother. Deceased was born in Scotland and emigrated to Utah when 22, where she met and married Nephi McLean, and in 1903, with her husband and young family moved to Raymond to make her home.

Bishop Walker, on behalf of the family thanked all who had in any way assisted on this sad occasion. He spoke of the talent in music possessed by the McLean family and expressed his appreciation as Bishop of their willingness at all times to assist in the musical functions of the ward.

Interment was in the local cemetery with Christensen Bros. in charge, a large cortege following the remains to its last resting place.

NEWS NOTES

There is nothing better than a Want-ad. to bring buyer and seller together. Try one.

Many gardens were worked lightly this week to start the weeds. It will be ten days or two weeks before much planting is done except in hot beds.

Several farmers are waiting delivery of tractors. Orders have taken all the stock of dealers, and shipments are not arriving fast enough to let the men get to work as soon as they would like to.

Grass is showing green now and growing quite rapidly. The winds Wednesday and Thursday robbed the soil of some of the recent moisture but there is still ample to germinate a first class crop.

Stake and Ward Home Nearing Completion

The new combined Stake and 1st Ward Church house is rapidly nearing completion. The crew has gradually been scaled down, until on Monday when we visited the new structure there were only about half a dozen men at work, finishing the woodwork, laying the maple flooring and painting the doors, window casing and so on.

The plastering of the walls is completed in a white finish, which can be worked for decorating if desired. The ceilings are all covered with Donnacoma, which besides being a splendid insulator is also beneficial to acoustics, and its color blends nicely with the white wall, light brown moulding and baseboards. The assembly rooms and Relief Society room and halls are floored with maple and the class rooms with finished inside with boards, grained and stained in natural color to give the boys the feeling of the great outdoors.

The baptistry is tiled in blue and white and is very nice, with two doors from the halls allowing quite a crowd to witness this ceremony.

The First Ward plans on holding it's Mother's Day program in the new building, and if work continues as it is going, this should be quite possible. When finished this new building will add another very splendid public building to those of which our town can already boast. As citizens we should appreciate these improvements.

A MORE BEAUTIFUL
FUL CANADA

The old saying that a home is a home until it is planted is true to-day as ever. Every unwanted home in Canada can be made more attractive by the judicious use of trees, shrubs, flowers and a well-kept lawn.

We are influenced by our surroundings to a greater degree than we sometimes realize. Children are particularly sensitive in this regard. Surely a home in and around which flowers are grown is a better place for bringing up children than a home where no attention is paid to the beautification of the plant kingdom. If children are taught to love flowers and become familiar with them they will be filled with love for these things and there will be less room in their hearts and minds for the things that hurt and destroy.

Canada is a land of rare natural beauty, from the Bras d'Or Lakes in Cape Breton Island to the Mountain Ranges of the Pacific Coast. Nature has endowed our country with the most beautiful and the greatest variety of natural scenic grandeur to be found anywhere in the universe. Mountains, lakes, streams, forests, plains, waterfalls, all are found in great abundance. Things which are unsightly and unlovely are made by man. It would seem that the thing we can do is to make these man-made places sufficiently attractive that they will in some measure at least, be in keeping with the great natural beauty to be found throughout this Dominion.

There are many good reasons why every householder, rural or urban, should do his or her part in making the home surroundings more attractive. In the first place, the money spent in buying stock or other plant material is a good investment and will increase the value of a home to a much greater extent than the amount spent in planting material. Further, the full and satisfactory life must be found time for both mental and physical relaxation and where can one find a more satisfactory place to get away from war-time stress and strain than among the flowers in the garden.

Another reason for putting forth a special effort in home beautification work just now is to make Canada more attractive to tourists. The tourist trade in the United States is very important to Canada at the present time and anything that can be done to help increase it will be a benefit to the Dominion as a whole.

We frequently meet the objection that gardens and flowers cost too much money, that they take too much time. The truth is that it is not so much a matter of time or money as it is of desire and disposition. If we are disposed to have gardens and flowers and attractive home surroundings, we will have them no matter how busy we may be. Your nearest Experimental Station of Agricultural College will gladly give you information regarding suitable varieties of planting material for the district in which you live. The investment that you make of time and money in this connection will pay great dividends in satisfaction and if you make your home more attractive you have helped to improve the town or community in which you live. If you help to make your home town or community more beautiful you have helped to make a more beautiful Canada.

THE BANK IN OUR HOME TOWN

I begin here to try and interest the home-town citizen in what is of vital importance, and part of the economic life of our community. Our "home-town" is a friendly one — depression may have hit us, but we continue to be a happy lot. From quiet homes, lighted windows throw out a friendly light — the main street of our town is similar to that of any town our size, with its stores, post office, garages, etc. The general store is the meeting place, full of hustle and bustle — on one corner is "our bank" — it is housed in a brick structure in keeping with its surroundings, and it is with "our bank" I wish to deal. It is the informal surrounding where patrons tend to their business in general, and behind the scenes are those other mysteries of daily bank life with which we are unfamiliar.

Primarily a rural bank depends, as do the merchants of the town, on the net buying power of the community. Popularly, country banks are considered as if of one class, institutions with mostly farmer or stockmen customers, extending credit on wheat, corn, cattle, hogs and other foodstuffs. Actually they are widely diversified, each having its own problems. In the town as ours, the bank is housed in a brick structure and attends to the needs of the farmer constituency and the Sugar Factory. Higher comes the bank in a town of 3,500 population or over — it likely has same local industries, as mills or factories — next comes the bank of the county seat or trade centre, say 7,500 to 20,000 where loaning transactions cover a wide range of commercial, industrial and agricultural operations. The prosperity of all these depends, as does that of the business life of the community, on the buying power or net income of the area served.

For ten years farm income in our community has been precarious, and our bank has adjusted its methods to meet conditions. In so doing it has, to a degree of success, greater than is generally understood, been able to

"THE SATISFACTION OF FARMING"

Occasionally, in times of war, it is a good thing for the human mind to dwell on pleasanter and nobler things. Great men in the past, who have had to shoulder grave responsibility, have ever found surcease from their arduous toil in seeking contact with the soil, in the growing of flowers, and, if they were lucky, in farming itself.

That great American, George Washington, on December 4th, 1788, wrote the following letter of encouragement to the Philadelphia Society for promoting agriculture, of which he was a member:—

"The more I am acquainted with agricultural affairs, the better I am pleased with them; inasmuch, that I can no where find so great satisfaction as in those innocent and useful pursuits. In indulging these feelings I am led to reflect how much more delightful to an uncorrupted mind is the task of making improvements on the earth, than all the vain glory which can be acquired from ravaging it by the most uninterrupted career of conquests. The design of this observation is only to show how much, as a member of human society, I feel myself obliged by your labors to render respect and advantageous employment which is more congenial to the natural dispositions of mankind than any other."

A lunatic was trying to knock a nail into a wall. But he had the head of the nail against the wood and was hammering the point.

At length he threw down the nail in disgust and said: "Bah! Idiots. They gave me a nail with the head at the wrong end."

Another inmate of the asylum who had been watching, began to laugh.

"It's you that's the idiot," he said, as he jerked this thumb toward the opposite wall. "Nail was made for the other side of the room."

give security to our depositors and to supply the needs of the local community whenever and wherever called upon. We have every right to be proud of our "home-town" bank — we should be thankful for the part it has played in our daily life.

Marion Eileen Lawrence, five years old, was almost instantly killed in Medicine Hat on Monday when she ran into a sand truck on the street, and the dual wheel of the truck passed over her body causing almost instant death.

The Town Hall front was decorated early last Thursday morning with 25 or 30 robins, perched in the windows out of the snow and away from the wind. 15 below zero weather must be quite a surprise to these harbingers of spring, who were apparently fooled by the previous warm weather, or else here to show us that this is the last kick of King Winter and spring is here now for sure.

HEARTS WALKING

Mrs. Harry Pugh Smith

SYNOPSIS

Janet Phillips has no car of her own or well to do father, like her friends in Bay City. But now that her crowd has finished high school and been away at finishing school or college, Janet finds that she is left out of much of their gayety. Priscilla Leigh—at the moment interested in Janet's old friend Gordon, Key—is making herself disagreeable. Gordon, having asked Janet to a dance one evening, tells her he cannot take her, as he is going with the crowd to a dinner at Priscilla's. Janet has not been invited to the dinner. Jim Phillips, Janet's brother, is about to play golf with Ruth Hetchcoate.

CHAPTER III

Jim grinned, Howard's handsome face was crimson. It occurred to Jim that in the arrogant young heiress from New York Howard had met his match.

"All right," said Jim, "let's go."

Ruth drove first and it was a pleasure to see her ball wing straight down the fairway.

"It looks idiotically simple," murmured Miss Helen Sanders. "You're supposed to hold your club like this," said Jim when she grasped the driver which Howard handed her as if it were a baseball bat.

Jim attempted to demonstrate the interlocking grip but Miss Sanders made it plain that she neither desired nor required instruction.

She took a stance, more reminiscent of Babe Ruth than of Walter Hagen. She narrowed her eyes, bit her lip, gave her club head a peculiarly vicious glare and flailed the air. This time she dug up a divot of turf from behind the tee and lost a hair pin, but the ball remained undisturbed.

"It looks as if there's more to this than buying the latest thing in sports clothes," she announced morosely.

"Don't be silly," said Miss Helen Sanders peevishly. "I'll hit the darned pill or burst."

In Jim's opinion she had a rotten temper, nevertheless he found it impossible to watch her without a tingle in his pulses. Every move she made was graceful.

"There!" she cried. "I've done it."

She had indeed connected with the ball, although she topped it and it weakly trickled less than thirty feet from the tee.

"Success!" murmured Jim with an ironical grin.

"Lead on," she said curtly. "I'm in this up to the neck."

In spite of her potent conviction that it was less majestic for fate to permit her to play less than the leading role, Miss Helen Sanders made every blunder possible to the beginner. When distance was necessary, she chopped her ball about twenty feet if she moved it at all, when only a gentle stroke was needed, she whaled into the branches of a tree in the next fairway. She lost ten balls in the rough, burst three rubber tees, and took from fifteen to thirty strokes on every hole. By the time they completed the first nine holes Howard was in a black rage. He, too, had reached the point where a decent putt was beyond him and his last three drives hooked into the ravine.

"Don't you think this has gone far enough?" he demanded furiously.

"I'll finish if they have to carry me in on a stretcher," she said.

It began to look to Jim as if they might have to do just that, provided that the sun did not set in the meanwhile.

She and Howard Leigh were of a pattern, Jim thought, except that where the Leighs counted their fortune by thousands, Helen Sanders' father reckoned his in millions. She had all of Howard's objectionable traits magnified to the nth degree, and Jim never had any patience with that brand of arrogance.

Nevertheless her glance had an effect upon his heartbeats which disturbed him. He had never had the time or the money to play around with girls. He knew very little about any except his two sisters and Ruth Hetchcoate, for whom he had a big-brotherly affection. But he was no fool and he distrusted from the beginning the mixed had fallen desperately in love with Bill Carter when she was nineteen and married him two months later. Bill had just secured his first job, selling radio advertising. His salary was small. At first they had had to live in two housekeeping rooms and Berenice was compelled to budget rigidly, but they had been tremendously in love. Janet's heart ached when she remembered how radiantly happy Berenice and Bill had been that first year before Bill had a raise in salary and they moved to the new efficiency apartment on Wilshire Boulevard.

"Who is it?" asked Berenice sharply when Janet knocked.

"Do I have to give a counter signed?" inquired Janet.

"Oh, it's you," murmured Berenice not too graciously.

"You'd think you were afraid of the police," remarked Janet. She knew quite well of what Berenice was afraid. There was a bridge table set up in the middle of the living room. Appended to each corner were chromium trays in which stood bedewed and partially emptied emotion with which Miss Helen Sanders inspired him.

"If you want golf lessons I'm here for that purpose," he said briefly. "Only I think I should warn you it is likely to be a waste of your money and my time."

She was making one more attempt to put her ball into the cup.

"You really mean you don't like me, don't you?"

Jim's eyes were fascinated by her rounded throat where she had turned her collar in. "Yes," he said a little hoarsely.

She smothered a yawn, swung her putter and sighed with satisfaction when her ball flirted with the cup and finally rolled cooly in.

"Don't let me worry you," she remarked composedly.

"God forbid!" cried Jim.

Janet had said she had to pick up her brother at the club, which happened to be true, but not the whole truth. When she borrowed Jim's roadster for the afternoon she promised to collect him later. However, it was useless to call for Jim before dark.

"But I couldn't stay on at Priscilla's as if I were trying to sneak in on the dinner party," she muttered.

It was pure coincidence that she happened to be passing the smart apartment building in which her sister had been living for a year and a half.

"I'll go up and trade my tale of woe for Berenice's," Janet decided with a rueful grin.

Berenice was twenty-two. She highball glasses. The three women a lolling back in their chairs held lighted cigarettes. Janet had met them all at various times. They also lived in the apartment building and, like her sister, had more leisure than anything else.

"Berenice never draws an easy breath when we're up here for fear friend husband will walk in," May Shelton explained to Janet. "You'd think it was the dark ages the way she lets that guy cramp her style."

"There's just enough ginger ale for another highball, Janet if you want one," she suggested.

"Janet doesn't indulge," put in Berenice quickly.

May Shelton tittered, "Don't tell me you have scruples like Berenice's Bill."

"It's partly that," admitted Janet with a shrug, "and partly that I have more expensive habits now than I can afford."

Berenice scowled and glanced at the score pad on the table. "Speaking of expensive habits," she said "total up and give us the bad news."

"But we haven't finished the last rubber," protested Sue Berry.

Berenice glanced at the small electric clock on the slender console table in the entry. "Bill will be home in half an hour. Sorry, here's your hats."

May Shelton laughed, "Thank goodness I'm not hitched to a flat tire."

Berenice flushed, "Bill's all right," she said loyally, "only he has old ideas."

"Sue's high," announced Lou Fletcher. "You owe her six, five cents, Berenice. I'm a quarter loser. Here it is."

Berenice fished a handful of coins from her purse. "The Berry family will have steak for supper," announced Sue, gleefully pocketing her winnings.

"And here's where I set Bill down, to another can of pork and beans," said Berenice.

NEWS NOTES

Teddy Wagstaff is home from the Hospital now and is slowly improving. He was on the street Saturday, but was content to travel slowly & carefully, quite different from the usual rapid stride we all know so well.

High waters of the Red Deer river in the Drumheller area forced residents of a number of the villages there to desert their homes and the river bed was full to the top of the banks in Drumheller. It was described as the worst flood in 40 years.

The 1st Ward Choir Ramee Saturday night was acclaimed one of the jolliest of the winter season. The prizes donated by business people of the town added interest to the whole affair and the prize dances, with door prizes made every hour full of interest. A Junior dance from seven to nine preceded the regular evening party.

17 cars of fat cattle were shipped out of the local yards on Saturday fourteen car lots billed for California. Amongst the shippers were J. W. Eavins with 5 cars, W. A. Heninger 2, Knight Sugar Co. 2 and several other feeders sharing in the large shipment, one of the biggest single shipments ever made from the local yards we are told.

WEEKLY LETTER

SOYBEANS

In past years soybeans have been looked upon in Southern Alberta as a crop worthy of a little investigation, but as one which was never likely to fill any important place in our scheme of Agriculture. They require much the same climatic conditions as corn in order to give best results. This being the case, the question of the proper variety to choose is of great importance, as there is a vast difference in the habit of growth and time of maturity of different varieties, but regardless of which variety is chosen, yields considerably lower than those obtained in hot climates must be expected.

If soybeans do become important in Southern Alberta, particularly on irrigated land, it will be for grain production, for as a hay crop they cannot compete with alfalfa.

When soybeans are grown for grain in the United States, or in other places where they are one of the important crops, they are used for many different purposes. Soybean oil is probably the most important product made from them and soybean oil meal is one of the most important by-products. It is a very high protein food, containing over 40 per cent protein, and is used in the feeding of different classes of live stock. Manure in making fox foods and other special foods which call for a high percentage of protein.

In the last five years industry has been using plastic to a much greater extent. These are made chiefly from soybeans, so the cow's milk and carboic acid. Plastics are finding a much wider use today in the manufacturing of articles of different kinds, but particularly in household equipment. Since they do not break or chip they are used for handles for kitchen utensils and small tools. Their low moisture absorption makes them particularly valuable for the construction of outdoor furniture. It may be of interest to the ladies to know that on account of the light weight of plastics, the shoe maker now uses them in making their heels, while the dentist, with loftier thoughts, uses them in making their false teeth. It is comforting also to know that worm-proof coatings are now being made from plastics.

On account of the many ways in which soybeans can be utilized, they are now commencing to command the attention of industrial firms in Canada as they have done in the United States. Variety tests of soybeans which have been conducted at the Lethbridge Experimental Station for several years have clearly shown that many varieties such as Mandarin, Mauchly, O. A. C. 211, and several others which are important in Eastern Canada and the United States, ripen too late for average seasons in Southern Alberta. Until recent years, Manitoba Brown and Wisconsin Early Black were the only two varieties that were considered early enough to be dependable in Southern Alberta. These two are unsatisfactory for oil making since they produce oil that is too dark in colour. A few years ago a yellow coloured variety called Kabott was developed at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. It ripens just as early as the two mentioned above, produces oil of a desirable colour and has an additional advantage of being less susceptible to shattering.

Where sugar beets are grown the sugar beet drill is probably the best machine to use for seeding soybeans. They can then be cultivated with the sugar beet cultivator, and harvested with the binder or the ordinary bean harvester.

Almost a million pieces of hospital and surgical supplies and clothing have been shipped overseas by the Canadian Red Cross Society during the past two months for the men of the Canadian forces and for distribution by the Red Cross Societies of war-torn parts of Europe, it will be reported Tuesday at the Annual Meeting of the Central Council of the Society in Toronto, Delivered from all over Canada will be present.

From February 1st to March 31st, 1,702 cases were shipped to the Canadian Red Cross Society in London, England. They contained thousands upon thousands of the articles made by the women of Canada—hospital necessities and knitted articles.
Thirty cases of hospital supplies were sent during the same period to the French Red Cross Society; 244 cases, including clothing for refugee women and children, to the Finnish Red Cross; 44 cases to the evacuee children of London; 34 cases for Polish refugees.

Large quantities of woollen articles of clothing so necessary in the English winter climate have been distributed to the Canadian men in the Alder shot area by the Society's Comforts Committee in London, and greatful appreciation of the comfort of home made socks has been expressed by many officers on behalf of their men.

Dr. Fred W. Routley, National Commissioner, yesterday received a report from the overseas Visiting Committee that volunteer visitors had been recruited and were now attached to many hospitals in England and Scotland. It is the duty of these women to look after Canadian men lying in these hospitals and relay their needs to the London office, from which parcels are forwarded regularly. Wherever necessary, messages are sent by the hospital visitor to the patient's anxious parents in Canada.

"This service, which, unfortunately, must grow to large proportions as the war goes on, is one of the most important pieces of work done by the Canadian Red Cross Society," Dr.
Routley stated.

Members of the Independent group who were elected at the recent Provincial election will meet in Edmonton tomorrow, April 20th, to choose a group leader. The meeting has been called by P.M. Campbell, of Lethbridge. A number of names have been suggested such as Speakman, Davison, Bowlen or Duggan.
